II. Raw Space Booth Construction Requirements

1. Booth Construction Companies

1.1 During move-in, congress, and move-out periods, any construction, dismantling, or maintenance must comply with relevant regulations. Cooperation with the Chinese government authorities and the organizer's inspections is required.

1.2 Any agreement or arrangement between the exhibitor and the personalized booth constructor is a private contract between the two parties. In the event of any accidents, incidents, or disputes, the parties shall resolve them through legal means. The organizer shall not bear any responsibility.

2. Booth Design Requirements

The total height of the booth design and construction must include the floor platform, header board, and all signage on the top (please log in to the exhibitor portal to view the specific height restrictions for your booth). The booth structure must be stable, secure, and reasonably laid out to prevent accidents such as booth collapse that could lead to personal injury or property damage. If there are structural columns within the booth area, the decorative height of the columns must not exceed the height of the booth. Any fixed facilities on the columns, such as manual fire alarms, must remain exposed or be fitted with a fire door marked with a prominent fire safety sign.

3. Structural Safety Guidelines

The structural strength of personalized booth constructions at the congress must meet the required load-bearing capacity, ensuring the overall strength, rigidity, stability, and the secure connection of all joints in the booth structure, as detailed below:

3.1 The width of the booth's structural main wall at the base must not be less than 120 mm to ensure adequate contact area with the floor. For wide-span walls over 6 meters and steel frame structures, horizontal beams must be added at the top for connection, and vertical columns must be added at the bottom for support.

3.2 For all special booths with horizontal beams added at the top, detailed structural drawings of the beam-to-main-structure connections must be provided. The structural strength must meet the required load-bearing capacity. Beams must be made of steel and firmly connected. The connection between columns and beams must use bolts or other secure fasteners; lap joints, binding, or similar unsafe methods are strictly prohibited.

3.3 If glass materials are used for booth decoration, certified tempered glass must be used to ensure adequate strength and thickness (not less than 10 mm for curtain wall glass). The installation of glass must be rational and reliable, with metal frames or professional hardware used. Elastic materials must be used as cushioning between the glass and the metal components to ensure safety. Large glass panels must be clearly marked to prevent injury from breakage. If a glass floor is used, structural support columns and walls must be fixed beneath the floor and not directly constructed on top of smooth glass surfaces.

3.4 Steel structural columns must be made of seamless materials with a diameter of no less than 100 mm. A base plate must be welded to the bottom, and a flange plate must be welded to the top to increase the load-bearing area of the column.

3.5 Due to the specificities of the hotel's carpeting, adequate protection must be ensured. All raw space booth constructors are required to bring their own carpet and wooden boards. A layer of the exhibitor's own carpet must first be laid, followed by a layer of wooden boards, before any construction work can begin. Any violation or damage to the hotel's carpet will result in a deduction from the deposit as compensation.

4. Construction Management

4.1 Construction must begin according to the official move-in schedule. If overtime work is required, an application must be submitted in advance to the official constructor.

4.2 Construction must strictly follow the approved booth design drawings. No modifications may be made without prior consent from the Organizer.

4.3 The construction area must not exceed the allocated space.

4.4 All booth construction materials must be of fire-retardant grade B1 or higher. The use of flammable materials such as straw, bamboo, rattan, paper, bark, foam, reeds, combustible plastic panels, flammable carpets, fabrics, or wooden planks is strictly prohibited. If non-fire-retardant or flammable materials must be used for special reasons, prior written approval from the Organizer must be obtained, appropriate fire protection measures must be implemented, and final acceptance must be obtained before such materials can be used.

4.5 The use of cutting machines, electric saws, spray paint, banana oil (amyl acetate), alcohol, adhesive stickers, and other flammable substances is strictly prohibited on-site during construction.

4.6 Welding (electric or gas) and open-flame operations are strictly prohibited within the hotel premises.

4.7 During construction, no fixed facilities within or near the booth may be damaged, altered, or used for mounting or suspension purposes.

4.8 If there are fire safety, power supply, or communication facilities within or near the booth area, these must not be blocked. A minimum clearance of 60 cm must be maintained for safety and accessibility. Directional signage should be visibly placed in appropriate locations on the booth.

4.9 Ceilings are strictly prohibited for booths, storage rooms, equipment rooms, or LED screen enclosures.

4.10 Any exposed back or side surfaces of the booth must be treated with double-sided finishing. Exterior surfaces that are adjacent to other booths must not display any advertisements or promotional content.

4.11 The congress safety department personnel, licensed electricians, and public security fire bureau officials will supervise and inspect all booth constructions in accordance with the fire safety permit, relevant clauses in this chapter, and applicable regulations. Construction units must comply and cooperate fully. Any non-compliance or safety hazards must be rectified promptly following the inspector's instructions.

4.12 After construction is completed, all construction tools and materials must be removed from inside and behind (or beside) the booth. Nothing may be stored in these areas, and everything must be cleared from the hotel before venue closure.

5. Construction Personnel Requirements

5.1 All personnel must wear safety helmets and protective gear.

5.2 Workers must carry construction permits to enter the construction area.

5.3 Workers are strictly prohibited from entering the site under the influence of alcohol or in poor physical condition.

5.4 Workers operating above 2 meters must have ground supervision.

5.5 Electricians must hold valid certificates and adopt necessary insulation protection measures before beginning work.

5.6 Workers engaged in high-altitude operations must possess a valid high-altitude work certificate.

5.7 Workers must wear helmets and harnesses, with safety lines secured above. Monitors must be present; unauthorized personnel are forbidden in work zones.

6. Fire Safety Requirements

6.1 Smoking is strictly prohibited inside the venue buildings. Open flame operations, as well as the use of flammable, explosive materials such as paints, solvents, gasoline, and pressure containers, are strictly prohibited.

6.2 No company or individual may occupy or block any fire escape routes or exits in any way.

6.3 Temporary structures (booths) must not block the venue's safety evacuation doors, fire hydrants, fire curtains, distribution rooms, restrooms, or any other essential venue infrastructure.

6.4 All temporary structures (booths) must be equipped with fire extinguishers that have passed annual inspection. During the construction period, each booth must be equipped with one fire extinguisher for every 30 m² and two for every 50 m² (each extinguisher must be at least 4 kg).

6.5 The decoration materials used in all temporary structures (booths) must meet national fire prevention standards of B1 level or higher. The use of flammable materials such as elastic fabrics and cotton textiles for decoration is strictly prohibited.

6.6 All wooden structures and lightboxes in temporary structures (booths) must be coated with fire retardant paint before installation. Lightboxes must have ventilation holes.

6.7 All temporary structures (booths), storage rooms, and other rooms are prohibited from having fully enclosed ceilings. At least 50% of the area must remain open.

7. Electrical Requirements

7.1 The venue's basic power supply must be a three-phase, five-wire system.

7.2 Lighting fixtures and electrical equipment must comply with national safety standards and fire safety requirements and be constructed according to the GB19517-2009 National Electrical Equipment Safety Technical Regulations.

7.3 The power connection must be carried out by a qualified electrician, and they must have a valid certification. Nonprofessional personnel are prohibited from handling electrical connections.

7.4 The booth must be equipped with a secondary distribution board, and all components should be complete and intact. Electrical boxes must not be placed in storage rooms or enclosed spaces. They must be installed in an obvious location on the booth, with a minimum height of 20 cm from the ground.

7.5 The main switch of the secondary distribution board must have leakage protection, match the declared specifications, and provide proper grounding protection.

7.6 Electrical connections should use double-insulated wires, and connection terminals must be fully enclosed and not exposed.

7.7 Cables crossing the floor must have protective covers.

7.8 When electrical components such as ballasts come into contact with wooden structures, they should be insulated using non-combustible materials.

7.9 During the exhibition, each construction unit must arrange for a qualified electrician to be on duty. Before closing the booth each day, ensure that all electrical facilities are switched off, and the power supply is disconnected before leaving.

7.10 The use of iodine tungsten lamps, high-pressure mercury lamps, and other high-temperature lamps is strictly prohibited.

7.11 The use of high-power electrical appliances such as electric irons and electric kettles is strictly prohibited.

7.12 The use of air compressors, gas cylinders, or other pressure vessels is prohibited during the exhibition. If there is a special need, prior approval must be obtained from the venue, and these items must be placed in a designated area outside the venue to ensure safe usage.
